Jeff J Mitchell/Getty Images Ian Rapoport of the NFL Network reported on Sunday that the Minnesota Vikings are considering trading down in the first round of the 2018 NFL draft. On Monday's edition of NFL Network's NFL Total Access, Rapoport said that the Vikings will consider trading down and taking Alabama tight end Irv Smith Jr., and that a trade down will likely happen this week. "I'm told by a league source that they are looking at doing something in terms of trading down. They're looking at a trade down. They could do a lot of things, maybe even trade down once and pick up a second-round pick or trade down twice to pick up more picks," Rapoport said. "But this is the week of trade days. I'm told the Vikings have looked at the tight end class. I'm told they've looked at Irv Smith, who is a good guy, tremendous talent at tight end. He is raw but he's a good guy, a terrific athlete, and that is part of the dynamic, maybe, of what the Vikings are looking at in trying to make this pick work." "I think they can probably get a good number of picks back by going down the board early, and they might be one of the teams that are maybe best suited to do that," Rapoport added. The Vikings could use a tight end after trading for Kyle Rudolph. Smith is a must-get at No. 17. Quarterback Sam Darnold, wide receiver Josh Rosen, linebacker Tremaine Edmunds and quarterback Josh Allen are the top four tight ends remaining, and Darnold or Rosen are the consensus top picks.□□ □ □□ □□□□□□

3. Approve the last round of amendments to the Bangkok Agreement. Purpose This document has two purposes: to describe a proposed schedule for upcoming discussions and/or conferences between the United States and certain countries (jurisdiction-specific information) and to suggest a schedule for future interactions between the Office of the United States Trade Representative (USTR) and the International Trade Commission. The document has the intention of increasing transparency in these interactions and reducing the likelihood that future interactions could adversely impact the right of WTO Members to take a case to the Appellate Body. Given the fact that ongoing discussions and/or conferences between the United States and other countries are also taking place around the world and that USTR continues to host or host side events at the WTO Meetings of the Council for Trade in Goods, the Office of the United States Trade Representative (USTR) will consult with the appropriate departments/agencies prior to making USTR recommendations on the timing, substance, and/or location of future USTR-WTO negotiations. 1. Maintain flexibility in the scheduling process In order to maintain flexibility in the scheduling process, USTR will consider or facilitate time-sensitive issues on a case-by-case basis. This includes meeting requests from WTO Members, and from the WTO DSB. USTR will continue to try to honor requests from the WTO DSB for appointments. In some instances, USTR will be available to meet in less than a day but such appointments cannot be guaranteed. USTR will engage in informal discussions to facilitate such meetings. This is subject to the availability of staff/meeting rooms and to the staffing preferences of the participants. USTR will consult with the appropriate departments/agencies to determine the viability of holding an informal meeting. 2. Appointment requests that are less than 24 hours USTR is prepared to accommodate participants of an informal meeting that is less than 24 hours. Such an appointment request must be made no later than seven days prior to the proposed time and place for the meeting. 3. Appointment requests that are 24 hours or more in advance of the proposed time and place for the meeting USTR is prepared to accommodate participants of an informal meeting that is 24 hours or more in advance of the proposed time and place for the meeting. Such an appointment request must be made no later than 7 days prior to the proposed time and place for the meeting. 4. Appointment requests made in less than 7
