Postal inspector general says the name change of FedHire security systems after “4,500 employees at 341 public schools” was done to avoid misidentifying contractors or the Postal Service’s own work force as “security guards” and “bouncers.” The inspector general also criticized FedHire’s use of an “oversight committee” that met little or no business need for the Postal Service. FedHire spokesman Brad Smeltzer said the company was honored to be awarded a contract to provide security and that federal inspectors criticized them for mismanaging their services. “We have taken the issues raised with us by the federal inspector general and we are working diligently to address them,” Mr. Smeltzer said. “The service provided for 1,800 schools was never intended to be part of the U.S. Postal Service’s contract portfolio and that was clearly not our intent. Our contract was to support the Postal Service’s Intelligence Support Center.” FedHire does its work on postal property. During a House Homeland Security hearing Monday on school safety

Copy pasta: Mrs. D.’s note on a proofreading mistake I made. ? They say that slippers should be worn indoors. If your feet have super-sensitive footwear, you agree. Mine do, and I’m the only person I know who needs to wear slippers in her yard (sheepishly declined the offer of wooden slippers). Today, you can find me on my own public lawn. When I walk outside my front door, I automatically frown as I notice I have need of slippers and begin looking around my yard for a spare pair. Tonight, my husband came by my office and found me standing in the rear of our garage, wearing a pair of my daughter’s fuchsia flip-flops (making a point?). “But Polly,” he whispered (he’s - of course - referring to our two-year-old, and as you can plainly see, he’s privy to our deepest, most private and confidential thoughts, along with other things). “Those little slippers are way too small.” I understand his point. In similar fashion, I’ve found myself looking around our summer kitchen, the laundry room and our garage for unused shoes. In our summer kitchen, my daughters normally are available for giving slippers, but my sons are not. When my children were little and until they moved out of the house, my daughters volunteered to be the “grown-up” shoes — one pair in their size. But now, my sons are grown up enough. And there are too few cute boy shoes to go around. Oh, the trauma! My pain! My suffering! Anyway, if I had more time, I’d be baking cookies. That, and I want to play on a private sports and recreation court. Share this: Like this: Related Post navigation 38 thoughts on “Copy

They apparently keep the feet warmer and prevent you from being landmined (I'm only a little bit kidding...I know you probably meant that if you didn't!). [A case of pseudo-tumorous hematoma of the spleen associated with a blunt abdominal injury]. A case of massive hematoma of the spleen in a 30-year-old male is presented. The patient had a blunt injury of the abdomen and a hematoma in the spleen was noted on the plain computed tomographic film of the abdomen. The serum creatine phosphokinase level increased to 6,400 IU/l and the hematoma was complicated with mechanical obstruction of the lower half of the duodenum. He was transferred to a hospital for a better treatment, and emergency operation was performed to remove the hematoma. Spleen-preserving laparotomy was performed. The findings at operation revealed a moderate injury to the spleen, but no findings which would indicate a splenic parenchymal injury. After the operation, he recovered from the injury and his blood pressure and pulse rate remained stable. The prognosis of a spleen rupture is critically ill. We must always keep in mind the possibility of a pseudotumorous hematoma when a true hematoma of the spleen is found on the imaging studies.
