1. Start Photoshop CS6 by clicking its icon in the Windows taskbar. The program window opens. 2. The left side of the screen consists of the Tools panel, which has its own Quick Access toolbar, or QAB. See the image on the left in Figure 1-1. It shows the QAB with four tool buttons, Access, Format, Layers, and History. Figure 1-1: You can access the Quick Access Toolbar with this button. 3. You'll now work in the Layers panel, shown in the center of the Photoshop window. Click the second icon from the left on the toolbar to display the Layers panel. Photoshop CS6 comes with about 40 layers automatically named plus a sample thumbnail. 4. Photoshop CS6 also has a History panel on the right side of the screen that displays a list of the most recent editing actions you've performed, and that list is automatically updated each time you click the T button on the QAB. Click the T button to display a full-screen History panel. Figure 1-2 shows the top of the Layers panel. If the Layers panel is visible, you can place a new, inactive layer beneath any active layer. If the Layers panel is not visible, click the Layers icon to display it. 5. To access the Photoshop Layers panel, click the Layers icon to display the Layers panel. Click the dark triangle to the left of the word Layers and then choose Layers from the menu that appears. 6. The Layers panel is a split window with three layers shown within the window. The top layer is active and contains the currently selected image. It's named Active Layer. The next two layers below are image layers, and they're named as follows: *Layer 1: The layer I select. *Layer 2: The layer I selected _and_ the layer below it. *Layer 3: The layer I selected _and_ the layer below it. 7. Choose Layer from the drop-down menu to see the Layers panel menu, which is shown in Figure 1-3. Clicking this menu displays the Layers panel menu. The menu lists six items: History, Selection, Paths, Edits, Layer Tools, and Create Clipping Mask. 8. Clicking the History menu item opens the History panel, which you can see

Chaotically ordered spins in correlated surface states of a 3D topological insulator. Graphene, the prototype of two-dimensional (2D) Dirac materials, hosts quasiparticles with a variety of topological phases with highly tunable Fermi surfaces and excitation spectra, which has attracted tremendous research interest. The possibility of more exotic phases in 3D materials gives rise to further rich physics. Although this field remains largely unexplored, there are some recent theoretical proposals for phase-space filling of topological insulators in 3D. Here we present an extensive investigation of such anomalous phases in a 3D topological insulator. Based on density matrix renormalization group simulations on the surface layer of a 3D topological insulator with attractive spin-exchange interaction, we find a novel spin-fluid phase with unconventional ordered spin textures, which is stable below a characteristic temperature and exists between the nontopological liquid state and the topological phase. Similar to the 2D chiral spin-density wave, the ordered spin-density wave in the phase-space filling state carries spin current and leaves a quantized spin-Hall effect that is immune to any perturbations and has potential applications in quantum devices. Enron Broadband Services will be the official sponsor of the Pittsburgh Pirates during the 2005 MLB season. Enron has been a major corporate sponsor for the baseball team for three seasons. The sponsorship will last for the entire 2005 season and includes two 30-second spots during the season on the marquee board at PNC Park. Enron will also be integrated into several Enron buildings. For example, there will be Enron nameplates on employee mail boxes and new anti-graffiti paint will feature Enron's name on the road. A new electronic sign will be placed in left-center field where Enron's name will be the focus for fans entering the ballpark. Last season, Enron made season-long commitments to the Boston Red Sox and Oakland Athletics. Enron has also sponsored the Houston Astros. Enron continues to strive to be the World's Leading Company - characteristically outperforming the S&P 500 by more than one and one-half times. The NBC television network announced today that Enron is their early lead sponsor for the 2006 Winter Olympics in Turin, Italy. The network is expected to spend more than $100 million for advertising during the games. Other recent news include

December 09, 2018 The 2018 Winter DSDM will be held at the new University of Minnesota - Dillion Hall. This intimate and convenient event features a full meal which includes Appetizers, Main and Dessert, along with short breakfasts throughout the day. We are pleased to announce that the event will be sponsored by Uptown Dining and Coffee. We are happy to report that the event will be served in a location convenient to many on campus with plenty of parking and the proximity of the light rail station. This event is normally a dinner, but we are pleased to offer a longer breakfast, thanks to our generous support from Uptown Dining and Coffee. This event will feature two incredible chefs and extensive desserts. The response to our first chef, Glynis Lancaster, has been phenomenal and we are pleased that she has been selected to showcase another region's foods. And of course, there will be a full meal at the event. The theme of this year's event will focus on Community. Our thought was that our participants should be able to connect, bond and contribute to a common goal - the pursuit of the best in sustainable food. Why Does Engineering Dress Like Farming? Back in 1989, the world finally decided that CRISPR-Cas9 was going to be the new gene-editing technique du jour. And it turns out that other methods are already in the pipeline. But before you start looking forward to a future where someone spends millions of dollars to put a pearl in a plant, scientists are still really only able to cut and paste genes around with specificity and efficiency. That means editing genes to make different plants. But those plants, which are often incredibly hard to cross, are also often unable to mate with one another. And it turns out that all of this dressing up and fancy costs a little money. So cost-effective and efficient gene-editing is not only necessary, but increasingly important. For the past year, an international consortium of academic researchers has been working on a way to get the most bang for buck—or more specifically, a way to make billions of bucks—in gene-editing. And the method they've come up with is using a virus, which would then carry the desired DNA and insert it into the plant's genome
